ON WATCH

Star Words' Final Weeks

On the first Sunday of this year, we gave out "star words" during the worship service. I don't know how many people collected one. I don't know how many people came by the church office later to pick one up. And I don't know how many people have used their star word as a point of reflection this year. This sense of not knowing is part of the beauty of our faith journeys. No one can see what is happening in anyone else's faith journey.

During these final weeks of the year, consider what your star word has meant to you. On December 28, we will have several people share about their experience with their star word. If you would like to share something (2-3 minutes), please let me know. You could begin by telling everyone your word, and then you could talk about your experience with it.

I've been thinking about my word, and I will tell you about mine on December 28. During the January 5 worship service, when we introduced this idea, I reached in the basket. The paper stars were facing down, and to my knowledge, no one arranged them. When Megan put them together, they were random. So, did I pick my word through luck or chance? Or was the Holy Spirit involved?

My experience with my word has prompted enough self-reflection that I am choosing to believe that it was a providential stroke of good luck. God works in mysterious ways. I hope to hear from several people who want to share about their experience on December 28.

Our Blue Christmas service, being held on Wednesday evening, December 17 at 6:00 in the Sanctuary, is a contemplative service with candle lighting to honor the sadness that may accompany this season. We gather to remember God is good. God is strong. God is near. We are not alone, and we have every reason to hold on to hope.

Until then, bring your star word with you to Jazz Vespers this Friday and worship this Sunday, and see how the spirit works in you with your word.

Peace,
Matt

We look forward to having you here this Sunday, sharing in the joy of this experience at UBC.

Qualified Charitable Distributions

Are you familiar with Qualified Charitable Distributions (QCD)? A QCD might reduce the taxes you owe while helping your church. Here's how it works.

If you have an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) and are over 73, you are required to take a distribution from that IRA each year based on the value at the end of the previous year and your age. This is called a Required Minimum Distribution (RMD), and generally the distribution is fully taxed as ordinary income. The form of the distribution may be in cash or securities.

A QCD is a direct transfer of funds from your IRA custodian to a qualified charity. This direct transfer can be in cash or securities, and it counts toward satisfying your RMD for the year. A QCD reduces your taxable income by the amount of such distribution since it is not included in your income.

Charitable giving is not about taxes. However, the tax benefit from a QCD encourages charitable giving and could enable you to give more money to what you love. With the recent increase in the Standard Deduction, many taxpayers will find that charitable donations no longer have any tax benefit. A QCD can restore some significant tax benefits for charitable donations.
